

Greater Rochester Teen Book Festival Social Media:

The official Greater Rochester Teen Book Festival (TBF) social media outlets are where authors, community members, friends, and fans of TBF can access and share relevant information about the Festival and the greater literary community. All content is shared in an effort to further our mission to promote reading and literacy by connecting teens with award-winning authors and to demonstrate the value of teen readers and authors within our literary community.

We encourage our followers to engage with others on our social media outlets by commenting, posting, and communicating with other TBF followers. When interacting with others, please ensure all remarks are respectful and relevant to all participants.

TBF reserves the right to remove comments that are defamatory, profane, bullying, sexist, racist, or threatening towards other participants. TBF also does not permit spam or messages intent on selling or promoting products to followers unless deemed relevant to TBF or its members. All content and community posts on TBF social media sites should adhere to the community guidelines, terms, and policies for each outlet. Please refer to the guidelines below for each designated service:

- Twitter Terms of Service
- Facebook Terms and Policies
- YouTube Terms of Service
- Pinterest Terms of Service
- Instagram Community Guidelines

Posted comments and images do not necessarily reflect the views, opinions, or policies of Greater Rochester Teen Book Festival, Inc.. Should you have concerns regarding any of the material or content posted on one of the TBF social media pages, please email us at questions@teenbookfest.org.

Adopted by the Board of Directors
March 22, 2018